KNOCKED DOWN BY LANDSLIDE

Edward Newman Knocked Down when Three Tons of Earth Fall upon Him. Escaped Serious Injury.

While working at excavating the large bank at the Philadelphia and Reading property along North Washington street Edward Newman was caught by a landslide on Tuesday and narrowly escaped serious if not fatal injuries.

The bank which is about twenty feet in height is being dug away to make a new road to accommodate the teams which haul ties for shipment to the tracks back of the college property. Mr. Newman was engaged in undermining a large portion of the bank in order that the upper ground could be thrown down and work made easier.

He dug too far in however, and suddenly and without warning the huge amount of ground above him, weighing at least three tons, started to slide. He jumped to the side but was caught and thrown with great force to the ground. The force of the landslide knocked him a little out of its path or the man would have been buried completely underneath the large mass. As it was, he was covered by the heavy earth from the knees down and suffered greatly from his fall. After some minutes Mr. Newman resumed work but today suffered so much from the effects of the accident that he was unable to report for duty.

The other workmen at the place were saved by the fact that they were working at some little distance from Newman and were not in the path of the sliding earth. They at once went to his rescue.

At almost the same time another accident occurred within a few hundred yards. John Miller, a freight brakeman, was thrown heavily on the tracks while coupling cars and sustained severe bruises to his thigh and hand. The sudden movement of some cars caused the accident.

NO ONE KNOWS

State officials from Governor Edwin S. Stuart to members of the senate and house have been fairly deluged with protests and letters of inquiry over possible changes to be made in the National Guard of Pennsylvania by the operation of the Dick militia law, designed to make the state guard more like the regular army in organization.

As a matter of fact none of the state officials yet knows what will be done. In speaking about the matter Governor Stuart said: "We can make no statement now because we have not taken up the matter. Candidly we have not yet full information as to what the national government wants on some points. This, however, will be forthcoming soon."

To Give Cantata

The children of the Methodist Sunday School will give a cantata in the church on Thursday evening for the benefit of the piano fund.

SMALL BLAZE ON MIDDLE STREET

Gettysburg Fire Department Called out by Small Fire Caused by Defective Flue. Court House Quickly Emptied.

A fire alarm shortly after eleven o'clock this morning brought out the fire department, several hundred November Court followers and a large number of citizens in about sixty seconds. The fire which amounted to very little, was at the house on East Middle street tenanted by William Robinson and owned by Aaron Sheely.

The blaze, which was evidently caused by a defective flue, was first discovered by Mrs. Robinson. Neighbors also saw smoke issuing from the rear of the house and the flames were kept in check by a bucket brigade and the use of a garden hose.

When the alarm was turned in all of the apparatus was rushed to the scene but all that was used was a chemical extinguisher with which the fire was soon put out. The damage was trifling.

Fire At Huntsdale

Huntsdale had a fire Monday evening about six thirty o'clock. It was in the cellar of the home of Brady McGonegal, and was discovered by John Taylor, a nearby neighbor. An alarm was quickly given and a bucket brigade got busy with good effect. All of Mr. McGonegal's household goods were saved, but the house which is owned by W. P. Tritt, is badly damaged. It is believed the fire originated from the chimney and that sparks fell to the cellar. We understand the loss of both tenant and owner is covered by insurance. The house is a two story brick, and it is believed the damage will reach several hundred dollars.

WANT FOOTBALL STOPPED

The Hanover Ministerial Association has declared against the present method of playing football. At the meeting Rev. Dr. Charles M. Stock was appointed a committee of one to send a letter to the secretary of war requesting that the playing of football at the West Point Military Academy be suppressed, in view of the brutality and danger of the game. The thought of the Ministerial Association is that if the government schools were to lead off in the prohibition of the sport that other schools and colleges would quickly fall into line.

Monoliths Placed

The work at placing the four large monoliths in front of the new Gettysburg National Bank building has attracted a great deal of attention for the past week. Each one of the huge columns weighs seven tons and the most extreme care has been necessary to put them properly in place. The columns form the most striking feature of the large portico which, when completed, will add greatly to the appearance of the handsome new structure.

HUNTING SEASON IS SUCCESSFUL

Hunters Report Good Results of Days in the Woods. Rabbits Plentiful but Few Pheasants. Quail in Some Sections.

The hunting season in Adams County up to this time has proved one of the best ever recorded. All of the nimrods have come home after a day's outing with their bags full of rabbits, squirrels and other game.

The opening of the squirrel season before that for cottontails took a large number of hunters out to the woods in October but since the open season for rabbits came in the hunters are devoting most of their attention to them, letting the squirrels go.

Although the rabbit season opened two weeks later this year than last, there is still considerable complaint about it being too early. The weather has been too warm, say the hunters, for good sport and the animals are not as good to eat as they will be later on. Notwithstanding this the county woods have been full of the nimrods for the past ten days and hundreds of bunnies have fallen prey to their skillful marksmanship. In all parts of the county the fleet footed little animals are reported plentiful. The first day of the season Bendersville and vicinity reported 250 killed and New Oxford 100.

Pheasants are scarce as ever and up to this time reports of less than a score killed have come to our office. Quail are becoming somewhat more plentiful and some good bags have been made but hunters report them far too few to afford good hunting. Wild turkeys are seldom shot in Adams County.

The opening of the deer season on Monday is the event to which the hunters are now looking forward. Prospects were never better for a successful season and hundreds will be out in the mountains, in camps and hunting individually.

WAGES VS. LIVING

Eastern Railroads May Grant Employees' Demands For Increase.

New York, Nov. 10.—Conferences are being held here by railway officials to discuss the request of employees of the eastern railroads for higher wages. These demands are based on the high cost of living, and the consensus of opinion among railway officers is to grant an increase in pay, but as small an increase as possible. That course is considered the only alternative of upsetting the improvement being shown in gross earnings.

It was also learned that employees of western roads were preparing a higher wage scale to submit to their employers. The demand for higher wages, both in the east and west, are coming from all departments of labor. There has been practically no change in the wages of railway employees since the autumn of 1906, when the Pennsylvania granted an increase of 10 per cent. That increase was subsequently granted by all of the roads.

BALLINGER GIVES LIE TO ACCUSATIONS

Secretary Nominates Glavis For Ananias Club.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Secretary Richard A. Ballinger, of the department of the interior, issued the following statement:

"My attention has been directed to the text of an article purporting to have been written by L. R. Glavis, which is to appear in Collier's Weekly, and advance copies of which have been furnished by that weekly to the press.

"The Glavis story is a tissue of falsehoods and insinuations utterly unwarranted in view of the facts easily obtained by anybody who wants them.

"It is not surprising that a publication which could in pursuit of this same propaganda, recklessly under date of Oct. 30, reproduce a view appearing on a familiar railroad folder of the Grand River Canyon in Colorado, as a picture of an available power site which was in danger of unlawful acquisition on the South Platte river, 200 miles away and across the Continental Divide, should be willing, without the slightest effort to ascertain the real facts, to give wings to a story which had heretofore been submitted to so great and just a man as the president of the United States, who, after a most careful consideration thereof, in which he had before him the entire files of the general land office and of the secretary of the interior relating to each and every one of the matters presented, pronounced the same disingenuous and without justification.

"The statement of Glavis has gained nothing either as to its veracity or justification in the interval since its presentation to the president, and in view of the complete vindication by the president of himself and the other officers of the department concerned, I will make no further statement at present."

PLAYS JUVENILE COURT CHANGES

Judge Lindsey Criticizes Move in Pennsylvania.

BERTHS FOR POLITICIANS

In a Letter to Mothers' Congress He Declares That the Juvenile Court and Probation System Declines When Machine Politics Interferes.

Atlantic City, Nov. 10.—The proposed amending of the Pennsylvania law providing for juvenile courts, with an intimation that the changes would provide berths for politicians, is criticized in a letter from Judge Benjamin B. Lindsey, of Denver, which was read at the opening session of the board of managers of the National Mothers' Congress.

After praising new juvenile court legislation in other states, Judge Lindsey, who is an active spirit in promoting this work throughout the country, says of the changes in Pennsylvania:

"These alterations have jeopardized the work. The effect has been to take it out of the control of those who earnestly seek the best interest of the child through wise probationary effort and to put it in the hands of the politicians. These amendments might have been safeguarded with provisions for recommendations from some reliable body as to the qualification of probation officers. So far the evil effects of this change have not been felt as much as they may be in the future, when changes are made, and the politicians begin to see the possibilities for place hunters.

"It is believed that an appeal of organizations like the Mothers' Congress to the judges vested with this power of appointing probation officers may do much to avoid the danger referred to. From the moment that the juvenile court and probation system feels the taint of machine politics its usefulness begins to decline."

Judge Lindsey, in his communication, addressed to Mrs. David O. Mears, of Albany, N. Y., chairman of the executive committee, took occasion to compliment Mrs. Frederick Schoff, of Philadelphia, president of the Mothers' Congress, who talked on the "Value of More General Work for the Progress of Children." Judge Lindsey spoke of her as "a pioneer in this work and I have the greatest respect and admiration for what she has done."

A reception was held and then followed the meeting, which opened with a public symposium on the "Progress of Child Welfare." Mrs. George W. Marshall, of Delaware, talked on the organization of mothers, and Mrs. Howard W. Lippincott, of Philadelphia, spoke on the "Value of Child Welfare Work."

STOLE JEWELRY OF DEAD

Late Sandy Hill Millionaire's Grave Opened by Robbers.

Glens Falls, N. Y., Nov. 10.—The police of this city and neighboring towns are on the lookout for grave robbers who opened the grave of J. Edward Howland, a Sandy Hill millionaire, who died a few months ago, and took from the body several valuable pieces of jewelry.

Women Voted; Men Contest Election.

Asbury Park, N. J., Nov. 10.—Women's votes are to form the basis of a suit to upset the legality of a recent school election held at Bradley Beach. Opponents of woman suffrage maintain that more women's than men's votes were cast for an $85,000 issue of school bonds recently, and that the issue was carried against the best judgment of the men.

Woman Killed by Train.

East Islip, L. I., Nov. 10.—While riding a bicycle over the Carlton avenue crossing of the Long Island railroad here, Mrs. Annie Cidulke, of this place, was struck by an eastbound passenger train and instantly killed.

Forbes Appointed Governor General.
Washington, Nov. 10.—Secretary of War Dickinson signed the commission of W. Cameron Forbes, of Massachusetts, as governor general of the Philippine Islands.

The sod cover for an orchard is a very convenient one at harvest time in the matter of cleanliness in the handling of the fruit, but in most sections it is detrimental to the best growth of the trees and the development of the fruit. Much can be done for orchards in sod that have not been doing well by merely breaking up this sod covering and giving clean cultivation, which makes possible a better circulation of both moisture and air in the soil.

passed another good night and his general condition is excellent. The paralysis remains the same, but the fact that there has been no sign of a general breakdown makes it probable that the injury to the spinal cord is not beyond a cure.

LOSS TO BIG FOUR MAY BE $2,000,000

Officials of Road Astounded at Revelations.

Cincinnati, Nov. 10.—It is rumored here among railroad men that the Big Four shortage through the defalcation of Charles L. Warriner, which Vice President Harris, of the New York Central, in New York put at $643,000, may go as high as $2,000,000. It is generally conceded that the total defalcation will go far above the Harris figures.

Officials of the road admit they are astounded at the revelations made to them by the deposed treasurer during the long talk they had with him.

They are pressing him for further details of how he spent the money, the sums he says he paid to black mailers and lost in speculation, leaving a large amount unaccounted for.

Warriner still asserts that he has not a dollar left with which to make any restitution.

One of the objects of the Big Four officials in trying to get all the facts from Warriner is to lay a basis for the arrest of all implicated with him in any way.

It is announced that plans are about completed for the arrest of a man and woman who for some days have been under close surveillance.

BANISH THOSE GRAY HAIRS!

Kill the Dandruff Germs—Stop Hair Falling

Thousands of mothers are looking younger. Their gray hairs are gone. The natural color has come back, and with it a new growth of soft, glossy, luxuriant hair. Why should you look old before your time, when you can look years younger by using

It is Positively Guaranteed to Restore Faded and Gray Hair to Natural Color.

If other "so-called" Restorers have failed, don't give up hope, but give WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR RESTORER a trial. You run no risk. If it is not exactly as represented, your money will be refunded.

PROFIT BY OTHERS' EXPERIENCE

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

ECZEMA FROM HEAD TO FOOT
For Six Months his Suffering was Beyond Words—One Mass of Irritation and Itching was Dreadful—Slept Only from Sheer Exhaustion—Almost Out of His Mind—After 24 Hours' Use of Cuticura Slept Like an Infant and Then was

CURED IN ONE MONTH BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I am seventy-seven years old and one day, some years ago, I fell from a step-ladder, bruising my head. In a few days I could not walk. I called in a doctor and inside of a week erysipelas set in. The doctor had not cured me of that when I was taken with eczema from head to foot. I was sick for six months and what I suffered tongue could not tell. I could not sleep at night because of that dreadful itching; when I did sleep it was from sheer exhaustion. I was one mass of irritation; it was even in my scalp. The doctor's medicine seemed to make me worse and I was almost out of my mind. I read of Cuticura and sent my wife to the drugstore, who was a member of my lodge of Odd Fellows, for a set of the Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent. I used them persistently for twenty-four hours. That night I slept like an infant, the first solid night's sleep I had had for six months. I was not afraid to use plenty of Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap with hot water and in a week's time I was able to put on my clothes again. In a month I was cured. From that day to this I cannot praise the Cuticura Remedies too highly. I may add that I have a very heavy head of hair which I owe to Cuticura. W. Harrison Smith, R.F.D. 2, Mt. Kisco, N. Y., Feb. 3, '08."

A single set of the Cuticura Remedies is often sufficient for the treatment of the most torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning and scaly humors, eczemas, rashes and irritations, with loss of hair, from infancy to age, when all other remedies fail. Guaranteed absolutely pure and may be used from the hour of birth.

WILL APPEAL CONTEMPT CASE

Federation of Labor Backs Up Their Three Leaders.

CALL TRIAL UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Council in Session at Toronto Denounce Trial Without a Jury as Deprivation of Priceless Heritage.

Toronto, Nov. 10.—If Samuel Gompers, Vice President John Mitchell and Secretary Frank Morrison, of the American Federation of Labor, eventually have to serve jail sentences for contempt of court, it will not be due to lack of support from trades unionism.
The executive council of the federation recommended to the annual convention that an appeal be taken to the United States supreme court, both in the Bucks Stove and Range company's injunction case and in the contempt proceedings growing out of it.
That the convention will ratify the recommendation seems certain, and that the three labor leaders and their fellow officers will be re-elected for another year is predicted.
Report concerning the Gompers trial in part read:
"We recommend that an appeal be taken from the decision rendered in both the original injunction as well as the contempt case growing out of it. We cannot permit these decisions to go unchallenged. They affect fundamental rights, and either the courts or congress must safeguard them."

Trial Unconstitutional.
"It should be borne in mind that in these proceedings Messrs. Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison did not have the constitutional right of trial by jury. All the circumstances in this case go to prove that conviction without a jury is not a trial by jury in their peers. We hold that, excepting where contempt is in the presence of the court, the liberty of no citizen should be committed to the keeping of any one man, regardless of who he may be or what position he may hold; on the contrary, we hold that a citizen charged with violating an injunction, the penalty of which involves imprisonment, should have the same legal right to a trial by jury that is always accorded to a person charged with violation of the criminal law. To deny the right of trial by jury is to take from the people the protection and priceless heritages which were secured by them after centuries of persevering struggle, sacrifice, exile and even martyrdom."

"Whatever differences of opinion may exist among men as to any controversies between labor and capital no good citizen of our country who treasures freedom can rest secure on a trial by jury becomes so well recognized and so firmly established in our legal jurisprudence that no man will ever again attempt to deny this essential and historic right."
The council also recommended that organized labor take appropriate action looking toward the naming of suitable citizens to fill vacancies that may occur in the supreme court of the United States in the lesser federal courts.

SLAYER CAUGHT, ENDS LIFE
Wilmington Murderer Shoots Himself When Officer Approaches.
Wilmington, Del., Nov. 10.—Sensational suicide was the tragic sequel to the murder of Mrs. Pasquella Muzzano, who was shot and killed at her home in the Italian colony in this city by Giulio De Sabatino.
After the shooting De Sabatino fled to the woods along the Brandywine, near the Dupont powder works. The police established such a close cordon around the woods that he could not escape. Wilbur Hahn, a motorcycle officer, caught sight of a man skulking in the woods and started after him. It proved to be Sabatino. The fugitive ran, but was soon overhauled. Just as the policeman was ready to seize him, De Sabatino drew a revolver from his pocket and sent a bullet into his brain, falling dead instantly.

Ohio has over thirty new and reorganized granges since the last meeting of the state grange in Columbus against eighteen for the entire year of 1908.

CUT GIRL UP, HE SAYS

"Herb Doctor" Confesses Manslaughter in Revolting Crime.
Taunton, Mass., Nov. 10.—While the attorney for "Professor" Frank L. Hill, the Fall River herb doctor, who pleaded guilty to an indictment of manslaughter in connection with the Tiverton suit case mystery, was making a statement in the nature of a confession, reporters in Fall River found in a spot indicated in the confession the head of the victim, which completed the dismembered body of the missing young woman, Miss Amelia St. Jean.

Hill's attorney told the court that Miss St. Jean died in Hill's office as a result of her own act, after Hill had refused to give her the surgical relief which she sought.

Terrified, the lawyer said, Hill dismembered the body and disposed of it. The torso and limbs he scattered along the Bulgarmarsh road in Tiverton, while the head was wrapped in a black skirt and thrown into the bushes near St. Patrick's cemetery in Fall River.

The maximum sentence for manslaughter in this state is twenty years' imprisonment.

MINERS IMPRISONED BEHIND WALL OF FIRE

Explosion Starts Blaze That Prevents Escape.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Nov. 10.—Shut in behind a fire which is burning in the Auchingloss mine of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western company, six miles south of this city, are from four to five men, while one other has been taken out dead and one fatally burned. There is little hope of reaching the men who are behind the fire in time to save them, unless they have managed to get some distance away from the blaze through other workings.

There was a severe explosion of gas in the Ross vein in the No. 1 shaft at the mine, which is one of the deepest in the anthracite region, and this explosion set fire to a section of the workings. The flames spread rapidly, and were quickly beyond control of the men working in the vein at the time. Anthony Protokos, who was badly injured by the explosion, was caught in the flames and so severely burned that he died while the rescuers were taking him out, and Charles Koukas, a fellow workman, was so badly burned that there is but little hope for his recovery.

Rescuers, who dashed for the scene as soon as they heard the explosion, were just able to reach these two men before the flames drove them back, and they were unable to discover whether the explosion involved the four or five others known to be behind the fire or not. The officials believe, however, that these entombed men were so far from the explosion that they were not injured, but express grave fears that they will be unable to reach them before they are suffocated or burned by the flames.

Sacramento, Cal., Nov. 10.—Ten years in the penitentiary is the sentence imposed by Judge Hughes on Claude Wood, a chauffeur, convicted of manslaughter, for running over and killing James F. Smith on the River-side road last August, but ordered that the commitment be withheld and that the defendant be placed on probation.

In the terms of the probation is a provision that Wood contribute $25 a month toward the support of the five children he made fatherless by his reckless driving.

New York, Nov. 10.—Eight lives were lost in the collision between the barkentine John S. Bennett and an unknown schooner off Block Island. Reports of the disaster were brought here by the schooner William Jones, which picked up two Filipino sailors. Both the barkentine and the schooner sank after the collision.

The Bennett left here Friday bound for Halifax, laden with coal. Little could be learned from the Filipinos, who could not speak English. They said they had shipped here on the Bennett.

HYPNOTIST HELD FOR MAN'S DEATH

Put Simpson to Sleep But Couldn't Awaken Him.

CHARGED WITH HOMICIDE

Persists That Man Is Still in a Cataleptic State, But Efforts of Physicians and Hypnotist to Rouse Him Fails.

Somerville, N. J., Nov. 10.—In a little rough finished room in the basement of the Somerset county hospital an attempt was made by the methods of the hypnotist to resuscitate the hypnotic subject, Simpson, who had apparently died while under hypnotic influence. On some rough planks, raised to a table's height, lay the body—living or dead—of the man Simpson, whose means of livelihood had been as a subject for the showman-hypnotist, Arthur Everton.

Everton is in jail, charged with homicide, and persisted in his declaration that Simpson was not dead, but was yet in a cataleptic condition, in which the hypnotist had placed him for exhibition purposes. Everton had begged the authorities that his friend and sometime instructor, W. E. Davenport, of Newark, be sent for and be allowed to attempt to revive Simpson. This earnest request of the hypnotist the authorities after consultation decided to grant.

Mr. Davenport first applied his ear to the body as if listening for heart beats. Then he slightly opened the eyes of the man and, bringing his own eyes close to them, looked into them intently. Davenport was manifestly sincere in what he was doing. His manner affected all those who silently watched him. The little room was in absolute silence as Davenport again applied first his ear, then the tips of his fingers over the motionless heart. Next he bent his head down low over the head above the black cloth, placed his lips close to an ear of the body he sought to revive, and said, sharply and eagerly: "Bob!"

It was a trained voice, the voice of a man drilled to shock or command the senses, and it startled without moving the intent group of watchers. "Bob! Your heart!"
"There was another silence as tensely dramatic as the mind can imagine. Then followed the words: 'Bob! Your heart! Your heart is beating!'"

If after the sound of the operator's voice the subject's eyelids had moved, it seemed as if none there would have been greatly surprised. But there was no motion.
But the operator eagerly felt again over the heart and again listened, and then again spoke into the unhearing ear:

"Bob! Listen! Hear what I say, our heart! Your heart is beating!"
There was no response, no movement of the eyelids, no fluttering of the heart, and Davenport motioned to the manager under whom Everton had exhibited last week. He stepped to the side of the body and repeated the phrases Davenport had used. After that Davenport pressed upon the breast as if artificially to start a movement of the heart and then spoke into the other ear.

"Bob! Now there was an accent of pleading. 'Bob! You hear me! Your heart is moving!'"
Dr. Long, the county physician, then spoke to him. "Do you think that man is dead?" he asked.

"I think he is dead," Davenport replied.

The autopsy was performed by County Physician William H. Long, assisted by Dr. A. L. Stillwell, and the result showed that death had been caused by rupture of the aorta, the main artery of the heart.

The physicians declared that the rupture could have been brought about by a serious strain, but they gave no definite opinion on the nature of the strain.

No fears are expressed that the bridge will collapse, but traffic will be suspended temporarily.

You Don't HAVE to be a Stoker

Heaving coal into a furnace and shoveling ashes out is hard work. Besides, coal costs money. If you go to your heater more than three times in twenty-four hours, you are wasting time and labor, and throwing away coal. And the chances are that your house is not comfortable all through. You should install the

MODEL Heating System

It almost takes care of itself. Burns every pound of coal completely, getting every bit of heat out of it. Distributes the heat uniformly, by steam or hot water, to every radiator in the house. Keeps all rooms warm and cozy whether on the "windy side" or "over the heater." Makes no dust, and fewer ashes than a hot air furnace, because it burns less coal, and burns it thoroughly. Thousands are in use, saving from one-third to one-half the former consumption of coal. Quite a desirable saving.

THE LEDOM RANGE

The Ledom is as good a kitchen range as the Model is a heating system—which is saying a great deal. Its grate alone saves half of the usual coal consumption, and makes it the simplest, quickest, most convenient range ever built. Don't fail to see it.

MODEL BOILER

THE BEST SERVICE

The Country Merchant, the Home Merchant, the Gettysburg Merchant makes the dollar of the Home Shopper go further than any merchant in the city could.

HOW?

The city retailer buys his stock from the same manufacturer or jobber of whom the Gettysburg Merchant buys and the price is the same to both but the Home Merchant undersells the city merchant every time and at the same profit.

WHY?

The city merchant pays a rental of thousands of dollars where the Home Merchant pays hundreds or none. The wages of the help of the city man are higher, so are his taxes and every item of his expense account and in the selling price must be figured this greater expense account. The result is as absolutely true as two and two are four that the city man must and does sell the same article at a higher price to cover all his expenses than the figure at which the Gettysburg Merchant offers the very same article. The Gettysburg man gives his patrons the benefit of this saving in expenses and undersells the city man every time.

Where Does the City Man Get Even?

He offers a bribe of a bargain or otherwise for the opportunity to double up along some other line, or he offers a cheaper substitute, for he is not running his business as a charitable institution.

And the Result is What?

The Home Shoppers discover that if the spending of the dollars had been where they were earned that they would done more good—brought the return of The Best Service more good to the Home Shopper and more good to his neighbor the Home Merchant.

A TYPICAL AMERICAN

By F. A. MITCHELL.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Eben Blackburn when he went to Paris was recognized by every one as a typical American of that class whose motto is, "Every tub on its own bottom." He not only considered every one beneath him, but every one above him, his equal. No spirit of arrogance prompted him to set himself up above the former, nor did any false modesty lead him to shun the latter. He was as free with the one as with the other. The result was that he was popular with all.

Blackburn had risen in his own country from peddling farmers' household necessities in a big red wagon to managing director in a large manufacturing company. At thirty-five he had made money enough to enable him to see the world, and he saw it. He liked Paris and stayed there long enough to learn to converse, after a fashion, in the French language, and became interested in French society. Not being afraid of appearing at a disadvantage among the better classes, he walked in among them as if no one had a better right and remained there because they rather liked him. "What charming effrontery!" they exclaimed. "What droll humor! No one but an American could thus disregard our conventionalities and be tolerated among us."

But one morning Blackburn left Paris, followed by the maledictions of a select circle of French men and women who had taken him up—that is, he would have been thus followed had they known where he had gone. There were others, who knew the cause of the reversal of feeling toward him, the corners of whose lips curved in a polite satirical French smile. This is the way it came about:

Blackburn gave a dinner to the set who had discovered in him such piquant American traits. Some evil minded persons hinted that the reason they fancied him was his dinners and his theater parties, but this never came to the ears of any of the circle. The French are too polite to impugn any one's motives to one's face. Blackburn had discovered in Paris an American scientist whom he had long before hired to make some investigations for him in a process of manufacture and invited him to the dinner. The scientist tried to beg off on the plea that he had no evening dress. Blackburn insisted, and the guest appeared in a pepper and salt suit.

Not even French politeness could keep the company from turning a cold shoulder to the scientist. The poor man endured the treatment till it became unbearable, then excused himself. For a few minutes after his departure there was an embarrassing silence, when Blackburn said:

"In passing your Hotel de Ville to-day I noticed the inscription, 'Liberty, Equality and Fraternity.' You talk of equality in France, but you don't know the word's meaning. In America we don't try to tackle any one of these words except liberty. We never prate about equality, but we don't judge a man by his clothes."

Having thus expressed himself, the host turned the topic of conversation and, instead of permitting them to fall into a bad humor with him, kept them well entertained and invited them to another dinner to be given two weeks hence, when he promised to present a friend whom he was sure they would like. All accepted, and the party broke up with much gaiety.

When a fortnight had passed they re-assembled to admire the American's originality, eat his viands and drink his wines. He presented to them M. de Pierres, a Frenchman like themselves, who was faultlessly dressed, whose hair had been treated with curling tongs and whose mustache was carefully waxed. M. de Pierres was not a communicative man—indeed, his conversation was confined to "yes" and "no." But since his dress indicated that he was a gentleman he was treated by the other guests with scrupulous politeness.

The only time during the dinner that M. de Pierres used any words, excepting such as were monosyllables, was when the conversation turned upon soldiers meeting death on the field of battle. "That is not meeting death at all," said he. "It is being overtaken by death and cut down without realizing its presence. It is another matter when one's ending has been appointed to take place at a certain hour, of which he is cognizant, or when he is awakened at midnight from sleep and led to meet the antagonist whom he knows shall vanquish him."

There was something in the appearance of the speaker—no one could explain what it was—as he said this to send cold chills down the back of every one present. M. de Pierres did not pursue the subject. He took up his glass, touched it to his lips and set it down again.

"Wine, wine!" called the host. "Confound that waiter! I sent him ten minutes ago to bring it. I think he must have gone to sleep. I'll go myself. That's the way we do things in America—we do them ourselves."

Rising, he left the room.

"Monsieur," said one of the guests to M. de Pierres, "I suspect your name has been changed in the spelling. If I mistake not, you are M. de Paris."

"I am," replied the man addressed. "M. de Paris!" gasped one of the ladies. "Why, he is the executioner!"

The party broke up. The host did not return to see the effect of his introduction of a man in fine clothes to French society. In ten days he was hobnobbing with the khedive of Egypt.

A long step will be taken ahead in the matter of a discriminating public charity when laws are passed applying to all the country making it an offense to give to the professional tourist beggar. In nine cases out of ten if they are physically able to gad about the country, eating all kinds of grub and drinking all kinds of water, they would be able to stay where they were raised and earn an honest livelihood without prostituting their self respect by launching into the field of confirmed beggary. THE BANNER FARM STATE.

Missouri Tracts Smaller, but in Number They Exceed Others.

Missouri has more farms than any other state in the Union. Within her borders are 284,886 farms, which average 120 acres to the farm. The improved land to each farm averages 75 acres, or 62 1/2 per cent. These figures are based on the last census report. According to the report of the commerce and labor bureau, the farms of Missouri are worth $34.75 an acre.

Among the states of the middle west Missouri has smaller farms than many of them. Ohio is an exception, where 276,000 farms only average 88 acres each. Illinois has 264,000 farms of 124 acres each. Iowa has 228,000 farms of 151 acres each. Kansas has 173,000 farms of 228 acres. In the United States farms average 146 acres, but only 50 per cent is improved land.

F. B. Mumford, professor of animal husbandry in the college of agriculture in the University of Missouri, has prepared some interesting facts about the amount of live stock there is on an average Missouri farm. This is considered a great mule state, and yet there are four times as many horses as there are mules in Missouri. The equipment as Professor Mumford gives it is: Fifteen cattle, four horses, one mule, twenty-six hogs, five sheep and a fraction of a goat.

Fully one-third of the state's population depend directly or indirectly upon animal products for their existence. The income from animals and animal products is $130,000,000 annually. Fifty-five per cent of the farmers have their principal income from live stock—in fact, more than $900,000,000 are invested in farms, live stock and equipment for stock raising.

Missouri stands third in the middle west as the state having the largest number of renters on the farms. Illinois farms are tilled by 61 per cent owners and 39 per cent tenants. The percentage of tenancy in Iowa is 34.9, while Missouri has only three tenants in ten farmers, which means that seven farmers out of ten in Missouri do not pay rent, but have the title of their farms resting in themselves. The percentage of tenancy in Ohio is 27.5, but in Michigan it drops to 15.9.

There is said to be a tenant on land of David Rankin, in the northwest part of the state, making as much as $10,000 a year on rented land. Tenant farming in Missouri as well as in all the best agricultural states is said to be on the increase.

Missouri does not get so much return from her lands per acre as do many of the other states. According to the last census report, the money made on each acre of improved land in Missouri was $9.58 an acre. This is much less than in any of the best states surrounding Missouri. The return per acre in Ohio was $13.36; Michigan, $12.42; Illinois, $12.48; Iowa, $12.22.

Seeds a Cent Apiece.

Ginseng seeds are worth 1 cent apiece, or from $80 to $100 a pound. Dried root is worth $6.25 a pound.

When first growing from the seed the ginseng plants have two forks or stalks and one leaf on each stalk. The second year it adds another leaf on each part, and the third year the plant grows in three parts with three leaves on each part, and this year a seed ball forms.

This grows direct from the main stalk of the plant and from four to five inches above the foliage. The average plant produces from fifty to sixty seeds and sometimes goes as high as 100 seeds. Wild plants yield better than cultivated.

The fourth and fifth years one leaf is added to each stalk. The fifth year the plant is full grown, having three forks and five leaves on each stalk. It grows from one to two feet in height, sometimes as high as twenty-seven inches. The leaves are broad and flat, about four inches long and two inches wide when full grown with scalloped edges.

It takes five years to grow the root from seed for market and eighteen months to germinate the seed for growth. There is more cultivated root now on the market than wild. The plants are found on high, dry land in the woods and never in swampy places.

How Color Affects Growth.

Color agriculture is the latest. Camille Flammarion put seedlings of the sensitive plant into four different houses—an ordinary conservatory, a blue house, an ordinary greenhouse and a red house. After a few months waiting he found the little plants in the blue house practically just as he had put them in. They seemingly had fallen asleep and remained unchanged. In the green glass house they had grown more than in the ordinary glass house, but they were weedy and poor. In the red house the seedlings had become positive giants, well nourished and well developed, fifteen times as big as the normal plant. In the red light the plant had become hypersensitive. It was found that the blue light retards the processes of decay as well as those of growth.

Stick to the Country.

Life in a metropolis makes young children sharp, but not clever. It often destroys their chance of ever being clever, for it hastens the development of the brain unnaturally; it makes them superficial, alert, but not observant; excitable, but without one spark of enthusiasm. They are apt to grow blasé, fickle, discontented. They see more things than the country bred child, but not such interesting things, and they do not properly see anything, for they have neither the time nor capacity to get at the root of all the bewildering objects they crowd into their little lives.

whose tenderness of heart leads them to give to such folk would be opened could they see the snug sums which they convert into drafts every Saturday night—in many instances more than the weekly wage of those who contribute to them. If travelers of this type want to work for a meal, feed them; if not, direct them to the town or township trustees, who have an arrangement for providing for such folk.
